Dear Parents & Grandparents,

There is no greater joy than to know that our children walk in the truth. I very well remember a sermon of Rev. C.G. Bos in 1983 in which he referred to this text. And of course, the Bible is true. Yet as parents and grandparents we often fail to teach our children and grandchildren to walk humbly with our God. For many children worldly entertainment and sports are the most important. And even when our children read books it is often fluff.

Still, by God's grace, there are parents and grandparents that give their children books that help build them in the faith, and in understanding the history of the Church and of the world, so that these children are equipped for the task God is giving them to do.

Some grandparents let children pick out books, and if they offer only good books that usually works fine. Yet, in order to direct and encourage children to walk in the way they should go, it is often better to make the selection for them.

But what if they already have that book?

It was this question that encouraged us to compile this booklet. With the help of, preferably, the mother, grandparents from both sides can now easily stay up to date with a great selection of books that children should have. Some will see the wisdom of first ensuring that each book is on the family book shelf, others will want to go the next step in providing each child with a personal foundational library by the time they get married (and time goes fast).

Often we hear the remark that "my brother took that book along!" Some of those books can still be purchased. But others are forgotten.

Books will last through faithful generations. The best gift is often a book. And what a joy it is for grandparents to talk with their grandchildren about the books they recently received. What a joy it is if they themselves have just read that book again, before they gave it away. It stimulates conversations. It causes generations to walk together in the fear of the Lord.

But, "my children do not like to read!" is often said.

The best medicine for that is to read to them an exciting book by Piet Prins. Three-year-olds often sit quietly when Mommy reads a little Van de Hulst book. By the time they are six or seven they will likely read some themselves and when they are nine or ten they will read them to their siblings. These books are great favourites for babysitters.

The Bible stories by Cor Van Rijswijk, read by Theresa Janssen on CD, will enrich the children when travelling. At the same time they will learn Psalms, God's own words, instead of silly songs. Often we sell the CD Sing to the LORD, recorded twenty years ago, to young mothers who listened to it when they grew up. That is what by God's grace sowing good seeds does.

Indeed, "I have no greater joy than to hear that my children walk in truth."

They Looked for a City by Lydia Buksbazen

A True Story of World War I & II WWII Memorial Series 1

They Looked for a City is the saga of a Hebrew Christian family tossed by all kinds of national and personal storms, yet always emerging on the crest of each menacing wave, as if carried by the hand of a merciful God and the force of their faith. It is a pilgrim story of real people whose lives were marked by a two-fold stigma and a two-fold privilege — that of being Jews as well as believers in the Messiah of Israel, Jesus.

The center of this family chronicle is occupied by my beloved mother Yente, because to me she personifies something that is so precious and peculiar — the heart of a Jewish mother, and the impact of her faith upon her family and all those who came in touch with her.

The Tartan Pimpernel by Donald Caskie

The Rev. Dr. Donald Currie Caskie (1902-1983) was a minister in the Church of Scotland, best known for his exploits in France during World War II, during which he helped an estimated 2,000 Allied sailors, soldiers, and airmen to escape from occupied France (mainly through Spain).

The Baron of Salgas

A True Huguenot Story by Sabine Malplach

and

The Cross and the Crown & The Carpenter of Nîmes

Two Huguenot Stories by Deborah Alcock

Huguenot Inheritance Series #9

The Cross and the Crown tells about a man by the name of Gabriel Vaur. After the Revocation of the Edict of Nantes (1685), life once again became very dangerous for the Huguenots in France. When the Dragonnades came, Gabriel tried to get help, leaving his father, sister, and brother behind. Would he ever see them again? Would he ever be able to flee France and reach England?

The Baron of Salgas is the true story of the Baron and Baroness de Salgas. Even though her husband forbids her to be an open Huguenot, the Baroness knows that her Saviour had said that whoever would deny Him would be denied by Him. So one night she made her escape to Geneva. Would her husband follow? Would he recant? What would happen to their sons who were taken to the convents?

The Carpenter of Nîmes goes back more than a century to the year 1569 and tells about a man named Jacques Maderon. When the pastor tells him that Christ had said, "Son, go work today in My vineyard," he knows it is time to do something. Then the father of his friend was imprisoned. Would he succeed to cut the bars of the gate and so make way for the Huguenots to enter the city and deliver it?

The Well in the Orchard by Deborah Alcock

A Story of France in the 18th Century

Huguenot Inheritance Series #10

"Father!" Eugène burst forth, unable to withhold his tidings. "Father, the king is dead! The wicked rebels in Paris have slain him, slain him on the scaffold. Think of that! The king, the Lord's anointed, Louis of France!"

A flush overspread the old man's face, a tremor passed through his frame. Had he been able, he would have sprung from his seat, but he could not; one of his lower limbs was paralysed. So he lifted up his white and trembling hands to heaven, and said with deep feeling, — "God is just. His holy will be done."

Eugène was amazed. This way of taking a hideous crime, a terrible calamity, seemed to him incomprehensible. But then, as he reminded himself, his father was not quite like other people. However, he could not help saying, —

"I think it looks much more like the devil's will, my father."
